

Statistical Classifications

Statistics at more detailed levels than the overall aggregates are often presented in accordance with established statistical classifications.

The statistics, at more detailed levels, are very useful for analysis and application.

The classifications are often international classifications with some adaptations to local requirements. For example, some classes are broken down into finer ones and some classes are merged into a broader class.

The Hong Kong Standard Industrial Classification (Version 1.1) has been in use for many years. Since a few years ago, Version 2.0 has come into use. See the next page for the top level of classification under this version.

For lower levels of classification, see the full classification list. A publication on the subject is available. See the following paragraph on how to obtain it.

Apart from the classification of industries, there are classifications on occupations, trade, education and other subjects. Go the website of the Census and Statistics Department (C&SD). Click Hong Kong Statistics, then “Understanding Statistics”, and then “standard classifications”. There one can select the classification wanted for browsing or downloading.
